

Purdue Author Addendum Letter For Author Accepted Manuscript

This is a form letter that authors may use to send to publishers to request that the agreement allow them to share their author accepted manuscript of their article in their institutional repository before they have signed their publisher's agreement.

Dear [insert name of publisher's rights manager or similar],

I am a contributing author in an upcoming article in one of your journals, and am writing to request permission to deposit the author accepted manuscript of the article listed below into Purdue e-Pubs, the Purdue University institutional repository at <<http://www.docs.lib.purdue.edu>>. Purdue e-pubs is a not-for-profit digital repository for scholarly work created by faculty and staff at Purdue University. It helps makes their research available to a wider audience and helps assure its long-term preservation. The record of the article deposited includes the complete citation for the published version, along with a URL for the journal. The article for which I am seeking permission is:

Article:

[authors names] , [date], [title], [journal name], [volume or number], [pages]

If possible, I prefer to archive the author accepted manuscript version of my article. The author accepted manuscript version has an advantage over my pre-print version, in that it maintains consistency with the article wherever it is read. This also maintains a closer association of the article with the Journal.

I would be grateful if you could contact me to give your permission for including the article listed above. Please confirm that you grant me permission to deposit the author accepted manuscript of the article listed above into my institutional repository.

Thank you for your attention with this and I look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,

[your name]
